POETRY.

For the Commercial. LINES Suggested by Reading 'My Angel Name' in the New York Day Book.

When the day of life is over, When the evening shadows fall, When this weak and overburdened Soul is freed from earthly thrall-When the merciful death angel, Bears me o'er the flowing tide, And the loved ones who are waiting,

Mingled with the heavenly music, Purified from every stain, With what rapture I shall listen, As they fondly speak my name; Speak the name my angel mother Gave her infant undefiled ;-She will know me by no other,

When she welcomes home her child.

Meet me on the other side.

Sisters too, and that lost brother Dying for Columbia's fame; They have loved it ; - and, another. As he syllabled my name. (How my soul the memory blesses, Though the blinding tear-drops fall,) Every look spoke mute caresses, For he loved it best of all,

Yes, I know it has been spoken Ofter by unloving lips; True, alas! that sin and sorrow Dim it by their dread eclipse. But I know the time is coming, Twill be freed from sin and shame; Then, once more above, God willing,

I would hear my earthly name, Oh, I feel that it can never Bring a shadow of regret, Earthly sorrows past forever, Heavenly joys can never set. And, until I reach the glory, 'Till I'm freed toom worldly thrall, " Let me trust the loving Father. And the dear Christ ovor all.

There are temporary reasons why I do not choose to make a formal answer to such an article just now. But I have acted so long and so harmoniously in the educational and ecclesiastical enterprises of the State with the readers of the Herald, unless it be with the exception perhaps of those implicated in the affairs referred to in that article, that I venture to ask them to defer any censorious opinion against myself and the others, until circumstances will allow an answer. 2. In the opinion of this Council the admission of the affidavit of A. J. Curtis from his own hand, which affidavit was taken without the knowledge of Dr. Stone, and when there were no insuperable obaccused being brought face to face, was option of the holder into wrong in form and fact. Also, that inde pendently of this wrong in form and fact, the admission of the said A. J. Curtis statement of what he said to be the state ment of his deceased wife as testimony, should never have been allowed, and therefore the vote for Dr. Stone's exclusion should be re-considered.

That we can without an effort of charity see how both parties in the Church from one to three per cent. more, according to might have honestly thought themselves right on the subject of voting.

4. That even from the stand-point of the aggrieved members, we dare not justify their cause in withdrawing from the Church and uttering the grievous words and accusations against the Church—that they should have stood each in his place and then sought relief from their wrong.

5. In all the testimony brought before us upon the several specifications charging the pastor with cruelty to Mrs. Stone -with falsehood and prevarication-we can only see the results of extreme caution in word and act on the one hand, as viewed from a social position where was throbbing a half-crushed heart that sought for sympathy 6. That the Church, on and after the report of the Committee of Nine, when it became apparent that a large and respectable minority of the church, -including the State to prepare in season for the four of its deacons-was utterly opposed Dr. Stone-that then and there for the church, it would have been expedient, in view of the usage of the denomination and the law of Christ, to have paused before so grave an act and called a Council,

That the disavowal of the Church that the suspension of the deacons was designed to reflect upon their moral character, and only to suspend their official authority, should be deemed satisfactory, and that their return to the Church sho'd restore them to their official position. 8. That the disaffected brethren, in desisting from a separate preaching service as soon as they learned that such services were a grief to the Church, manifested a conciliatory spirit that under the circumstances should have been deemed satisfactory as to such services, and we reccommend the same spirit of conciliation touching all separate convocations.

9. That all the grievous charges that involve moral obliquity should be retracted, and that all parties, in the spirit of that charity that 'thinketh no evil'—that 'suffereth long and is kind'-come again together in the bonds of peace.

"It is great indeed most incomprehensive-We hardly know which to admire most the ingenuity of the designs, the patience needed for the execution, or the effectiveness of the whole as a grand moving and acting picture—a series as it were of almost tableaux vivants. When we state that the programme embraces forty-one different scenes, and illustrates some prominent events of the war-'the battles, sieges, fortunes,' marking its progress-evolutions by sea and land, we indicate the impossibility of doing justice to the 'show' in the space of our disposal. The whole is a triumph of artistic and mechanical skill, which we venture to say has never been equalled—certainly not surpassed—in the old world or the new. As furnishing a vivid picture of warfare, entertaining as it is instructive giving the dark as well as the light sides of the great contest-and enabling at a glance to comprehend its magnitude.

Superadded to the panoramic entertainment, Mr. LaRue gives his 'Olio of Oddities,' being comic sketches of life and character. The gentleman is a great mimic; marvelously rich in his changes of costume, puzzling in his assumption of the various indivualities; and as his matter is good, and his manner, professionally speaking, unexceptionable, we must pronounce the Olio worth much more than the sum charged for admission to the en-of the exhibition:

The Free Press has the following on Hughes' Military Map of Richmond:

"Major Hughes is selling in this city, a new and excellent military map of Richmond and Petersburgh, just published by himself, with the sanction of the War Department — The Major has had unusual facilities for getting up an accurate map of this description, as he was taken prisoner while bearing dispatches from our Government, and imprisoned for a long time in Richmond. After his escape he used his knowledge of civil engineering to advantage among the fortification of the rebel capital, and produced one of the best maps we have ever seen. As we may look for important movements in that direction, every man will find Major Hughes' map a handy thing for reference.

Major Hughes will lecture at Follett Hall to-morrow evening. Come out and hear him.

OUR OLDEST FRIEND.

Read to the Boys of "99" Jan. 5, 1865 BY O. W. HOMMES, I give you the health of the oldest friend That short of eternity earth can lend—A friend so faithful and tried and true
That nothing can wean him from me and you.

When first we screeched in the sudden blaze Of the daylight's blinding and blasting rays, And gulped at the gaseous, groggy air, This old, old friend stood waiting there. And when with a kind of mortal strife.

We had gasped and cloked into breathing life, He watched by the cradle day and night, And held our hands till we stood upright. From gristle and pulp our frames have grown To stringy muscle and solid bone; While we were changing he altered not, We might forget, but he never forgot.

He came with us to the college class-

Little cared he for the steward's pass; All the rest must pay their fee, But the grim old dead-head entered free. He stayed with us while we counted o'er Four times each of the seasons four, And with every season from year to year The dear name classmate be made more dear. He never leaves us-he never will,

Till our hands are cold and our hearts are still; On birthdays and Christmas, and New Years', He always remembers both me and you-Every year this faithful friend His little present is sure to send; Every year whatesoe'er we be,

He wants a keepsake from you and me. How he loves us; he pats our heads, And lo, they are sleaming with silver threads; And he's always begging one lock of hair, Till our shining crowns have nothing to wear. At length he will tell us one by one, My child, your labor on earth is done And now you must journey afar to see

My elder brother-Eternity !" And so, when long, long years have passd, Some dear old fellow will be last— Never alive a boy but he Of all our goodly company.

When he hes down, but not till then, Our kind class-angel will drop the pen That writes in the day-book kept above Our lifelong record of faith and love. So here's a health in homely rhyme To our oldest classmate, Father Time!
May our last survivor live to be

As bald, but as wise and tough as he!

CURIOSITIES OF THE 7-30 LOAN. Among the curiosities of the subscription to the Seven-Thirty Loan on Monday, was a request from the Treasury Agent at Santa Fe in New Mexico, that $100,000 of the bonds be sent there immediately, as many Mexicans and Americans desired to invest, and had the money in hand to do so. Also about $15,000 in varied lots, paid in by Col. Wagner, for some 150 colored soldiers in Camp William Penn. Also $200,000 subscribed by the Commercial Bank of Tennessee. Also $137,165 in a single check from "Chargress street, where he keeps an extensive ley Hyde, of the Hyde Oil Farm, Oil Assortment of Superior Creek, who not only puts his own mon-ey into the 7-30s, but gathers up the loose "oil money" around, and sends it forward to be invested on account of miners in California, to put $35,500 of now indipendent."

Word was immediately taken to the ter, and especially so of the young clopulpit, when Parson Wetmore was engaged in delivering his discourse.-Drawing himself up to his fullest height, and making known the intelligence, said: 'My friends, the house of God is no place for boisterous demonstrations; we will therefore, in giving three cheers, only go through the motions.' CHOICE SELECTIONS. FARM & HOUSEHOLD

ONE ACRE ENOUGH SOME TIMES. An "Ex-Market Gardner" gives to the American Agriculturist the following illustrations of what can be done on a small piece of land, by hard work and nigh manureing. The story looks large but we do not doubt its truth;

"On a fertile acre within sight of Trinity Church Steeple, New York, but in the benighted land of Jersey. lives a man whom, not to offend hi modesty, I will call 'John Smith.' John's neat cottage and acre cost him, some eight years ago, $3,000—now worth $6, "In the spring of 1864, he planted on his acre 12,000 Early Wakefield cabbage plants, which by the first week in in July, were sold in the New York markets, at $8 per 100, for $960. Between the rows of cabbage were planted, at the same time, 18,000 Silesia lettuce plants, which, at $1,50 per 100, brought $270. Both crops were cleared off by 12th July, and ground again thoroughly plowed and harrowed, and planted with 40,000 celery plants, which were sold before Christmas of same year at $3 per 100, for $1,200, making the total receipts $2, 430.

His expenses were: "Manure $150; keep of horse, $300; interest on $6,000, $420; hired labor, $400; incidental outlay, $100; amounting in all to $1,370, which deducted from the receipts gave him the net profit of $1,060.

"John is only a common place man. Some might call him a clod-hopper.-He has no particular skill, no great share of "brains"—his only prominent quality is untiring industry; but it would be difficult for any one, no matter how endowed with skill or brains, to make more of an acre than he has done.

"Another more ambitious friend, who thinks ten acres no more than enough has, with nearly the same crop, laid him self liable to pay Uncle Sam's 5 per cent. from his income on his income on his 'truck patch,' his profits having been this season, on ten acres of land, $5,700 over and above household expenses.both of the above are exceptionabe, cases, their grounds being in the very highest state of cultivation. but it is a fact beyond all question, that in what is known as the 'Communipaw district' the net profits per acre, for the past three years, have averaged $500. "No greater mistake can be made either by farmer or gardener, than spreading himself over a large surface. The market gardeners of New Jersey in the vicinity of New York, cultivate form one to fifteen acres each. The most successful are those who have been content with six or eight acres.-I believe their success will bear favora ble comparison with that of the Long Islanders, whose farm gardens contain from ten to one hundred acres each.-As a class, they are hard working and frugal, and all who have weathered the its owners. SYMPTOMS. The symptoms of Catarrh are at first very slight. Persons find they have a cold, that they have frequent attacks, and are more sensitive to the changes of temperature. In this condition, the nose may be dry, or a slight discharge, thin and scrid. afterward thick and adhesive may ensue.

As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are increased in quantity and changed in quality; they are now thick and heavy, and are hawked or coughed off. The secretions are offensive, causing a bad breath: the voice thick and nasal; the eyes are weak; the sense of smell is lessened or destroyed; deafness frequently takes place. Another common and important symptom o

Catarrh is, that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the morning of a thick or slimy nucous, which has fallen from the head during the night. When this takes place the person may be sure that his disease is on its way to the lungs, and should lese no time in arresting it. The above are but few of the many Catarrhal
